CHECKS AND BALANCES WORKSHEET

Do you like running things? Do something that no one else can: control all three branches of the U.S. government. Our new Branches of Power gives you the ability to introduce presidential agendas, write legislation, sign or veto bills, and even judge passed laws. That's a lot to juggle, so don't let all the power go to your head! In Branches of Power you:

wedding got the power to perform weddings from the state. But where did the state get the power to give that power? Hey—That's Reserved! The Constitution gives a specific list of powers to the federal government. But even if you read the entire Constitution, you won't find a list of powers for states. Instead, the Constitution says this:
