Guardini affirms that the liturgy is the self-expression of man, but of man as he should be (not as he presently is), and for that reason, the liturgy involves a severe discipline. Liturgical prayer must be accompanied by a long and severe discipline, until the depths of man re-awaken. This transformation by means of the liturgy, up until now, can scarcely be found. For that reason, Guardini says, “you must come to my school” (92). We can see that all of his intense ...

The liturgy will always have but an occasional and, in general, a very secondary role in the mysterious operation which opens a heart blind to the light of the gos pel. Were we to include in this term the Holy Mass, the sacraments, and the divine office, the whole of religion would come into play. In that case, let us no longer speak of the liturgy but rather of the influence of religion ...

We men do not make the worship service; the Lord is the one who calls us to worship God and is mysteriously present in the liturgy. The breaking of bread: “The breaking of bread” was an old Jewish ritual at meals, which Jesus employed at the Last Supper to express his gift of self “for us” (Rom 8:32). In the “breaking of bread” the disciples recognized him again after the Resurrection. The early Church called their liturgical feasts “the breaking of bread”.

Real and good liturgy squashes it all. It humbles you. It forces you to submit. It teaches you to be quiet and listen. It engages you and invites you to engage it. It causes you to struggle with your passions. And all of this is good!
